we play and practice, it will shape up to be very nice,” said Lewis.

Lewis named three players as captains of this year’s team: seniors Kat Melian, Kate Meyjes, and Anne Reardon. Melian returns as one of last year’s leading scorers. She scored the game-winning goal in last season’s 13-12 overtime win over Berkeley in the Western Alameda County Conference playoffs.

“Kat is one of our strongest shooters, she gets us on the board, but the team can only work if everyone around her is doing well too,” said Lewis.

Lewis has also been impressed by Reardon’s offense.

“Anne is a strong player and great for creating movement on offense. She’s great on defense and is aware of where the ball is. She’s improved as a shooter and will contribute there a lot as well. But I like her defense and her hustle,” said Lewis.

Meyjes, Lewis said, “is a leader by example. She works hard. She’s getting better at making good cuts and likes to create movement on offense. There’s a lot of potential there,” said Lewis.

Lewis has also been impressed by freshman Esme Krumins, the younger sister of senior water polo captain Peter Krumins and daughter of boys’ head coach Rik Krumins.

“She’s the only freshman on varsity and that’s not a decision we take lightly. She takes our feedback and has a great set of baseline skills,” said Lewis.

As for the goalie role, Piedmont will go with Sophie Nichols, who plays goalkeeper in soccer.

“She’s been working hard and taking advice. She really stepped up on JV initially in our first couple of scrimmages, so we decided to move her up,” said Lewis.

The program is still seeking its first winning season since 2014 when former coach Sarah Mooney was a senior. Mooney is still helping out as an assistant.

“We’ve been encouraging more girls to go out for swimming and look into playing club. We’re trying to make this program as cohesive as possible; we’re really trying to build it. It seems that’s been the case for a while, but I think we can take that next step as we have more girls beginning to commit to water polo earlier in their high school career,” said Lewis.
